DEPARTURE OF THOMAS.

The Thomas was to have got away for Manila at 11 m sharp today but she did not get away until close upon 2 o'clock. At the very last moment it was found that quite a number of the men were missing and a provost guard, in command of a lieutenant, was sent out to make a search. The guard returned without anyone and the presumption is that the missing men are in hiding here.

As the provost guard was making the rounds this morning, several soldiers were seen dodging around corners. It may be that these men are among the missing and again, it may be that they went back to the transport of their own accord, not wishing to be escorted thither by the guard.

The decks of the transport presented a gay scene previous to departure. The ladies were decorated with leis and many friends on the Navy dock waving them farewell.

Judge Wilcox As Angel of Peace

The case of David Aea, a native printer, charged with deserting his wife, was called before Judge Wilcox in the Police Court this forenoon.

Defendant pleaded guilty and then stated that the reason for his desertion of his wife could be found in some trouble they had about a month ago. Thereupon, he accused his wife of being unfaithful. He had made a vow never to live with the woman again and he was very much afraid that if he broke this vow, he would come to grief in all manner of ways.

Mrs. Aea was then called up. She said that the man in the question had been invited to the house by her own husband and that the latter ejected her from the house because he believed her unfaithful. He had no cause whatever for her had done nothing.

On being sharply questioned by the Judge, Aea stated that, after his wife had been away from the house a couple of weeks, he found he had to have someone to cook his meals for him. He invited a young woman to the house and she had been there since.

This admission having been gained, the woman said that she had been receiving the man in the question at her new place just to get even with her husband. Judge Wilcox said something about "Pot calling the kettle black" and then tried to effect a reconciliation but found this impossible.

The woman had nothing to say and Aea kept referring to his oath and what might happen to him should he break it. Judge Wilcox stated that there were a great many ways known to kahunas by which a native could get around his vows but Aea would not budge from his position. If he broke his vow and went into the water a shark might get him. If he went into the mountains, a rock might roll down on him. Judge Wilcox added that if he broke his vow, the printing press at the scene of his labors, might catch his hand.

The case being a very difficult one to solve, was taken under advisement until Monday morning. Aea was allowed to go out on his own recognizance.
